

Theatres Act on CO₂

Special Interest Session hosted by The Theatres Trust

10 September 2007 13:00–14:30

Theatre 3, PLASA 07, Earls Court 2

Following the Kyoto Protocol, the UK Government set a goal for CO₂ emission reductions at 20% below the 1990 level by 2010. With the Climate Change Act due to be in place by Easter 2008 all businesses are being asked to play their part. Many theatres are aware that reducing emissions also helps to reduce their energy bills and are taking action now.

At this seminar, organised by The Theatres Trust, Dr Ben Todd, Executive Director of Arcola Theatre and Natalie Lewis, Group Operations Co-ordinator of Ambassador Theatre Group talk about their plans to reduce CO₂ emissions in their theatres and what manufacturers and suppliers to the theatre industry can do to help.

Presentations follow with a discussion including Stephen Ainger, Chief Executive of Carbon Trust Enterprises, and Anne Hayes, Head of Market Development-Sustainability, BSI British Standards who are developing advice and standards.

The seminar will be chaired by Mhora Samuel, Director of The Theatres Trust.
